The navigation feature is optional, however it comes quite handy for themes that support it. Usually the theme will create a top menu bar from it or left/ right site navigation pane. The configuration for the navigation feature in `cfg.yaml` basically provides a link list for every language of your site. Since the order of the links are important the shape of the configuration is a YAML list. For every link the URL and the link text need to be provided. See the example below.

```yaml
navigation:
    en_US:
        - link:
            text: Pankyll
            url:  en_US/Pankyll
        - link:
            text: Pankyll Themes
            url:  en_US/Pankyll-Themes
        - link:
            text: Pankyll Theme Example
            url:  en_US/Example-Sites
        - link:
            text: Categories
            url:  en_US/Categories
        - link:
            text: Tags
            url:  en_US/Tags
```
